AAWGT Newsletter

October 2009

In case you missed it, the New York Times Magazine recently did a fabulous series, "Saving the World's Women." The five articles in this special issue (August 23, 2009) focused on the positive change that results when women are empowered, particularly those in developing countries. (See full text of articles at http://www.nytimes.com/2009/08/23/magazine/23Women-t.html?_r=1 .)

Since the 1970s, microfinance programs such as the one started by Muhammad Yunus, founder of the Grameen Foundation, show that when women do well financially, everyone in that society benefits. More recently, Greg Mortenson, author of Three Cups of Tea, the book about the schools that he has built for girls in Afghanistan, has shown the progress that is made in societies when girls are provided an education.

By raising women's educational and economic status, we are discovering that we can begin to undermine the extremism and terrorism that we see around the world.

As a member of a women's giving circle that supports programs for women and families, we are part of a global effort that ultimately can bring about more peace and harmony and higher standards of living.

Our upcoming event on Wednesday, October 14th, will be a great opportunity to hear firsthand from some of our grantees and to learn how AAWGT grants have made a difference for so many women and families here in Anne Arundel County.

September Meeting Re-cap

The many members and guests who attended the September meeting were treated to a fascinating and inspiring program detailing the impact of the arts on the lives of at-risk youth. Kirsten Elstner, Director of VisionWorkshops, illustrated how afterschool programs in photography and writing helped young people find their own voices to tell their stories. Ms. Elstner accompanied her talk with a compelling video of the children's work. Rob Levit, founder of Creating Communities, described how the arts improve the lives of elementary school children, hospital patients, and adults with mental illness. The presentations led to a lively exchange of questions and answers. Cheers to the Education and Program Committee and to moderator Laurie Sharp for an exceptional program.

Our Committees at Work

The Grants Committee is hard at work revising forms and developing a timeline for the 2010 grants cycle. The Committee has several new members and will soon be asking for volunteers to read and evaluate grant applications. Orientation meetings for reviewers are scheduled for Saturday, January 9 and Friday, January 22; new reviewers are required to attend one of the sessions. The review process takes place in March and April, and the finalists are presented to the membership for a vote at the May general meeting. Please contact Kathy Potter at pottercako@comcast.net for more information.

The Policies and Procedures Committee is working on some changes to the by-laws. Proposed changes will be submitted to the membership in November; a vote will take place in January.

The Leadership Development and Nominating Committee will present its slate of candidates for 2010 at the November meeting, and the membership will vote in December.
